

Independent Insurance Agents Offer Best Options, Says Allen

Looking to go with the best insurance company out there? Don't pick just one of them, says Pat Allen. After more than 30 years experience as an independent insurance agent dealing with dozens of insurers, Allen says that "none are the best at every type of insurance or annuities. That's why using independent agents like ours give you access to multiple insurers who excel in each area you need."

This gives individuals, families and businesses the best options for their unique insurance needs, Allen says.

Allen sits at the helm of a large family corporation and family of companies offering a "one-stop shop" in insurance and financial services. Allen Marketing & Associates, Inc., is a middleman between independent insurance agents and insurance companies; The Allen Financial Group offers insurance services for individuals, families and businesses; and The Allen Investment Group provides financial services.

In addition to these services, Allen maintains an extensive network of professionals – from attorneys and accountants to carpenters and plumbers – to whom he can quickly refer clients. But what agents and clients appreciate most about Allen is his straightforward manner and extensive knowledge. "I'm big on reality-based thinking," he says. "I get people out of their la-la-land thinking and get them into real-world thinking about what they need to do to get the best results."
